and Healthcare Administration

Dear Esteemed Colleagues,

Greetings from AIIMS & RFHHA, New Delhi

Modern hospital is a matrix organization, an amalgam of social, architectural and technological advancements. Healthcare industry is growing rapidly but the core ingredients such as care, compassion, empathy, trustworthiness and ethical considerations are losing their fabric. We live in a well-informed society, where patients, relatives, and others are inclined to question healthcare providers when medical outcomes are not acceptable. Ethics is considered a standard of behaviour and a concept of right and wrong in any situation. The primary principles of ethics include beneficence, non-maleficence, justice and respect for autonomy. There are legal and ethical dilemmas associated with delivery of healthcare. It is imperative for healthcare professionals to be well conversant with law and ethics - the pillars of healthcare ecosystem. The evolving technologies pose new challenges every day to the established tenets of medical practice. These challenges often involve social issues and ethical dilemmas with decisions affecting life and its continuity. Recent issues include reproductive rights, fetal health, stem cell research, euthanasia, DNR and confidentiality of records in cyber domain. Healthcare professionals need to be concerned about how law and ethics impact not only their respective professions, but also how these issues affect the consumers and society at large. Spiralling cost of healthcare leads to questions regarding availability, accessibility, affordability and equitable distribution of healthcare resources. It is thus the felt need of the hour to introspect and deliberate on these much relevant contemporary legal and ethical issues.

Against this backdrop, Research Foundation of Hospital and Healthcare Administration (RFHHA) in collaboration with Department of Hospital Administration, All India Institute of Medical Sciences, New Delhi is organizing a three-day Conclave on “Legal and Ethical Challenges in Healthcare Ecosystem” from 18th to 20th May, 2017 at Manekshaw Convention Centre, New Delhi. The conclave will open up new vistas for formulating SOPs for respective organizations. It will also address contentious ethical and legal issues related to healthcare and facilitate the stake holders for framing appropriate policies and guidelines. The various topics which will be discussed include Perceptions and Expectations of Society from Medical Professionals, Legal and Ethical issues in Medical practice, Law and Medicine a symbiotic relationship etc. A session has been dedicated only to PCPNDT Act, Surrogacy etc. which will aid in promoting the social cause of promoting the well-being of a girl child. There are contemporary issues pertaining to Medical devices, Compensation and Clinical research which is going to generate lot of academic debate and resolution of issues. We are sanguine this conclave will be an important melting pot for exchange of ideas and sharing of practical experiences.

Your participation and deliberation will help you to augment the knowledge base on various contemporary issues affecting all of us professionally.

We take this opportunity to invite you to attend the conclave as scheduled.

Please register at the earliest to avoid inconvenience at the last moment.
